

Loan Modification Tip # 5

Intero Real Estate Services—The Case Team

When you begin the process for a loan modification, any potential or pending process toward foreclosure activities come to a halt. What this means is that while you are working with the lender to modify your loan, you will not get any calls, communication, letters, or the like that tell you that you are about to lose your home. This also applies to you if the loan modification process fails and you are compelled to sell your home as a short sale. This is a great benefit to people who are undergoing this very painful transition in their lives.

We are experienced in short sales, if needed. If you have any questions, please contact us at 925-308-7045 or via email at caseteam@interorealestate.com.
